Excerpt: . her, and her husband beyond the seas, she would fain be with her husband, yet is loth to leave her children: so Paul would gladly have been with Christ, but was loth to leave the Philippians, his spiritual children. * Having a desire to depart. 1. The apostle doth not say, I must depart, but I desire to depart. All men must depart. There is a dying principle in all; the frame and contexture of their body is earthly, and tends to a dissolution. Nebuchadnezzar s image, though it had a head Of gold, yet feet of clay, Dan. li. 33. Take the strongest man, let him be Samson or Hercules, of whom we may say, yet he stands upon feet of clay; he is but animated dust, and must moulder away in time; death will come with an habeas corpus at last....
